

TO HONOR

CARROLL W. MCCOLPIN

MAJOR GENERAL, UNITED STATES AIR FORCE

Carroll W. McColpin was always interested in flying and by the time World War II began in Europe, he had amassed nearly 500 hours of flying time. He joined the Royal Air Force in late 1940 and was assigned to Number 607 Squadron. As a Hurricane and Spitfire pilot, he subsequently served in Number 121 Eagle Squadron, Number 71 Eagle Squadron, and Number 133 Eagle Squadron which he commanded. He was the only man to fly combat with all three Eagle Squadrons and was credited with 7 ½ German aircraft destroyed. He served in several operational assignments during World War II after transferring to the US Army Air Forces. He remained in the US Air Force after the war and retired as a Major General. General McColpin died on 28 November 2003.

Dedicated Patriot, Admired Leader, Father and Gentleman

By: Alida Adams